THEME: EQUITABLE HEALTH CARE FOR PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES IN SOUTH AFRICA

The South African Health Review (SAHR) is a peer-reviewed publication accredited with the Department of Higher Education and Training. The aims of the Review are to advance the sharing of knowledge, feature critical commentary on policy implementation, and offer empirical studies for improving South Africa’s health system.

The editors are pleased to announce that the call for abstracts for the 2020 edition of the SAHR is now open. Abstracts providing fresh insights into health systems strengthening efforts for equitable health care for Persons with Disabilities are particularly sought.

Overall, the 2020 edition will represent an evidence base which can be used to strengthen health systems and services and to inform future policy development in disability and health in South Africa.

Preference will be given to manuscripts that take into account the complexities and opportunities for developing and sustaining inclusive health systems, especially in the context of universal health coverage.

Please take note of the following:

- Abstracts must be submitted using the official SAHR abstract template which can be downloaded from the HST website: https://www.hst.org.za/publications/Pages/SouthAfricanHealthReview.aspx
- The body of the abstract may not exceed 300 words.
- Guidelines for authors are accessible at www.hst.org.za and strict adherence to these guidelines is essential.
- Submission of an abstract to the SAHR does not guarantee acceptance. All abstracts will undergo a systematic assessment process by the Editorial Advisory Committee.
